

SUBJECT : ENGLISH CHAPTER NUMBER: 4 PERIOD NUMBER : 2 CHAPTER NAME :GERUNDS

CHANGING YOUR TOMORROW

Website: www.odmegroup.org Email: info@odmps.org Toll Free: 1800 120 2316 Sishu Vihar, Infocity Road, Patia, Bhubaneswar- 751024

EXPECTED LEARNING OUTCOMES

GENERAL OBJECTIVES

- Understand the basics of grammar
- Being acquainted with the chapter and its tenets
- Understanding the idea
- Appreciate the beauty of grammar and use in day to day life
- Developing LSRW Skills

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES/ EXTENDED OBJECTIVES

- Understand the basics of grammar
- Being acquainted with the chapter and its tenets
- Understanding the idea
- Appreciate the beauty of grammar and use in day to day life
- Developing LSRW Skills

INTRODUCTION TO THE TOPIC

GERUND—

Gerund as subject & object of a verb, object of a preposition & subject complement

Identifying Gerunds in a Sentence

Let's take a look at some examples which will clarify these unique members of the English language. Remember, in every instance below, the gerund is working as a noun. Gerunds as subjects:

- •Reading is relaxing.
- Writing is an exchange of ideas.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=PhwGtNzdDmc

• Gerund phrases as subjects:

- Swimming laps is the most relaxing activity in the world.
- Filing papers can give you a paper cut.
- Gerunds as direct objects:
- I love reading. (verb = love; love what? reading)
- Patrick likes photographing nature. (verb = likes; likes what? photographing)
- Gerund phrases as direct objects:
- I enjoy shopping with friends. (verb = enjoy; enjoy what? shopping with friends)
- My friends anticipated our trying on new shoes. (verb = anticipated; anticipated what? trying on new shoes)
- Gerunds as indirect objects:
- I never gave reading enough of a chance. (verb = gave; gave what? reading)
- Last week, I made studying my priority. (verb = made; made what? studying)

- Gerund phrases as indirect objects:
- As part of her writing process, she began recording every detail. (verb = began; began what? recording every detail)
- Once Tom gave the order, he started collecting all the evidence. (verb = started; started what? collecting all the evidence)
- Gerunds as objects of prepositions:
- My love for reading was immediate. (preposition = for)
- By reading, we can explore new worlds. (preposition = by)
- Gerund phrases as objects of prepositions:
- Her joy in preparing for company was obvious. (preposition = in)
- Since completing his degree, his opportunities are endless. (preposition = since)

• Subject complement

- Gerunds can also function as subject complements. A subject complement is a noun that follows a linking verb. Linking verbs are forms of the verb to be, such as am, is, are, was, and were.
- Here's an example of a gerund used as a subject complement:
- The group's main goal is eliminating poverty.
- Here, eliminating is a gerund that acts as the complement of the subject goal.
- Examples of gerunds as the subject of a complement

- What Carlos really loves is skiing.
- The hardest part of rehearsing for the musical was dancing for hours.

• Object of the preposition

- Prepositional phrases are the kinds of things you use all the time without thinking about them. They're groups of words that give additional information in a sentence, such as where something is, where it is going, or when it occurred.
- Each prepositional phrase begins with a preposition. Prepositions are words like about, across, after, for, and in. A gerund can be paired with a prepositional phrase. Common prepositions used with gerunds include of, about, to, before, and after.
- She could talk about painting for hours.
- Examples of gerunds as the object of the preposition
- The author's first book about living abroad in his youth is now a bestseller.
- My father's interest in cooking with organic ingredients was inspired by famous cookbook. Homework--Solve exercise 3, 4 & 5 in notebook, 1 page handwriting

THANK YOU ODM EDUCATIONAL GROUP

