Grammar Junction

The words and, before, after join a word or sentence. They are called joining words.

Read these lines from the poem.

I had a box of crayons,
All shiny, straight and new.
I lent a friend one crayon,
And – oops – it broke in two!

Rimi likes to eat biscuits. She also likes to drink grape juice.

We can join the sentences using and

Rimi likes to eat biscuits and drink grape juice.

Look at the word and in these lines. And is a joining word.

I. Look at the pictures. Write the naming words for the pictures using the joining word and.

(a)

John and Mary

(b)

sunflower and bee

(c)

pen and book

girl and dog

LEARNING OUTCOME:

The students understand the use of joining words better and do the exercises given in the book.
