Read the passage and answer the questions.

Our hot desert stretch from Punjab to Karnataka. Our cold desert are in the mountains of Ladakh. Even our good, fertile land is becoming desert like in many places. Our largest desert, the Thar in Rajasthan, is spreading at the rate of half a kilometers every year. This is because of the already sparse trees and shrubs are cut down as people need the wood for fuel and the leaves for fodder. Cattles and goats eat the grasses and strong winds blow the sand on to good land because of the lack of tree to break the force of the wind.

Answer the following questions.

1. Name the largest hot desert .

    The "Thar" is the largest hot desert.

2. Where it is situated?

    It is situated in Rajasthan.

3. Why the desert is spreading every year?

    The desert is spreading every year because of cutting down of trees and shrubs for fuel and food for cattle, which leads to soil erosion.

4. Is it possible to stop further damage of the land? If yes give reason.

Yes, it is possible. By taking suitable measures to stop the spread of sand and by planting shrubs and trees which need less water.

5. The cold desert is in the mountains of _____.

    The cold desert is in the mountains of Ladakh
