

Think About it

1. How can one become a scientist, an economist or a historian...? Does it simply involve reading many books on the subject? Does it involve observing, thinking and doing experiments?

Ans: Reading many books on a subject is not enough. One must develop skill of observation and thinking. Experiments need to be done. One needs to have curiosity to explore and find new things. Above all, one must work hard and not get upset by failures.