

Q 1 what is reproduction, why is it important?

Ans Reproduction is the process by which living organisms produce young ones of the same species. It is important because it ensures the existence and continual ~~to~~ of the species after the death of present generation.

Q 2 Difference between Asexual reproduction and vegetative propagation

Asexual Reproduction

Vegetative Propagation

i) It is seen in animal kingdom It is seen in plant kingdom

ii) The parent organism is divided to reproduce this way only the vegetative parts reproduce.