

It couldn't be done is a sarcastic title for the poem which describes the scene when a male character is told by some people that a particular work could not be done by him so he sat down and got to work without any petty complaints and sarcastic lines and after some time, with a grin he happily declares the ('impossible') work is done. He also tells the readers that one should face the difficulties and have determination and do hard work to overcome these and