

A strange, an awful change in Armand's behaviour takes place. When he spoke to Desirée, it was with averted eyes, from which the old love-light seemed to have gone out. He begins to absent himself from home and when there avoid Desirée's presence and that of her child, without excuse. He draws far away from her wife. Armand is very cold towards Desirée and that of their child.