

The India of my dream will be a place where there is freedom of equality to all and everyone can enjoy it. Though India got independence in 1947, still we are not able to get complete independence from the caste, religion and skin colour discrimination. However, there are various social groups that speak for their rights and help them to oppose their oppression. Besides I dream of an India where there is no discrimination of any kind. Though there are many many initiatives by the government to promote education. But there are ~~many~~ many people who do not ~~relize~~ realize its true importance. The India of my dream will be a place where education will be mandatory for all. Corruption is one of the major reasons that are hindering the growth of the nation. Instead of making an effort to serve the growth of the country the ~~politicians~~ politicians are busy filling their own pockets. So, I dream of an India where the minister and official are dedicated to their work and for the development of the Honourable Principal, Respected teachers and my friends, Today I ~~Arundita~~ stand before you all to highlight the value of games and sports.

One who is always involved in physical fitness has a better mental health than others. It helps in build up our stamina and team spirit.

Physical activities are important ~~at~~ for children and the young generation as it stimulates mental and physical growth. It also improves their memory level, learning capacity and concentration level. It develops our patience. Along with bookish knowledge, sports and outdoor games are important. It reduces our laziness and we become more active. Now-a-days, sports facilities are being developed in almost all the schools and ~~at~~ colleges in both rural and urban areas so the students having interest in the sports and games activities can get better path to go ahead.

Thank you.
