The song of The Whale:-

- > The song of the whale by Kit Wright is a poem which is based on the killing of whales for our benefits.
- > Here personification is used which is art of giving emotions or human traits to a non-human being.
- > We are killing them, slaughtering their kinds just to use makeup & polish. The poet here simply states that every whale is crying for you. loss of life. You are dead now.

I can hear your voice in this forest of sea. I'll simply end the poem by saying that while you won't be able to sing again like rest of your kind. We will make you silent now.

Now you will live for our use.

The life we choose: Life of makeup & polish for our shoes. Your death like many other of your kind is worth
only this much to us.

A Helping Hand :-

→ This story is about a series of letters that tell a touching story about friendship & dealing with disabilities because she has only one hand. Here writer was asked to help a new girl in the class and become friend of her. I show the school. At first she hesitates but later they become good friends. Writes stars. Being a disabled girl she became a good friend of writer & by their kid mother.
