The poem "In the Bazzars of Hyderabad" is written by Sarojini Naidu. The poem is basically a list of all the traders <sup>who</sup> work at the bazaar. Here the poet tries to ask all the traders about their work. Like the poem begins with a question from the poet to the merchants about what they are selling. The Merchants reply that they are selling silver & crimson coloured turbans, Purple brocade & Mirrors from in Amber & daggers with handles of jade. Then the poet sees the vendors, weighing saffron lentil & rice, Maidens grinding Sandalwood, Henna & spice & pedlars calling for Chessmen & ivory dice. She also ~~see~~ finds gold smiths making ~~ornit~~ wristlet & anklets, Girdles & scabbards. Then the poet visits a fruit shop where she enquires what the fruit men are selling. ~~Then the musicians reply~~ She even comes across the musicians & flower girls who play music & weave tassels of azure, Crowns & Chaplets accordingly.
