Dear Diary

I was totally ready for the Eng test, I had studied all the notes and prepared very well. I was so confident about my exam, I was ready to go into the hall and crush that exam. I entered my hall, I searched for my seat no. and finally got my seat, I made myself relaxed before the exam and tried to recall, whatever I read last night. When exam was finally going to start my benchmate wished me "Best of luck".

for social science test" I was really aghast, listening those words. I was so much appalled, ~~was~~ and completely shaken up. I panicked what do I do, and I felt that failure was just in front of me. I have studied for the wrong test and now I was going to fail. After some time, the invigilator handed me the question paper. I really didn't had enough guts to look into the questions, but I comforted myself, by reminding myself about the promise, I made to my mom and dad about crushing the exam, scoring the highest, so that I would get my desired gift in return from them. I looked into question paper, the questions seems a bit arduous, but some of them were easy-breezy too. I finally wrote every answers and handed the answer papers in time to the invigilator, she smiled at me and ~~she~~ told me to loosen up myself and at last when came out of exam hall, everyone asked me about my exam, I just told everyone 'It was a doddle' for me. So, diary now I am just waiting for the results to publish and I am on test books.

Good Night,
Rohini
