

ASSIGNMENT

Q- Pancreas acts as both endocrine and exocrine gland. Explain.

A- Pancreas is an exocrine gland as it has a duct to store pancreatic juice secreted by pancreas and use it whenever required. It is considered as a endocrine gland as it does not have a duct to store the hormones insulin and glucagon which are directly supplied to the blood stream.