

Q Why the earth a living planet and why other planets are not?

A - The earth is living planet because all living things need some sort of food, water, the right atmosphere and right temperature.

Earth is the only planet which has air, water in liquid form and the right amount of warmth.

Where as the other planets are not having all this things, some of them are very hot and some of them are very cold so the other planets are not living planets.