

Story Writing.

There was a poor woodcutter living in a small house. One day he went to the forest with his broad axe, he started cutting a tree near a lake. Suddenly, his hands slipped and his axe fell into the lake. The woodcutter started crying. Then suddenly a goddess came out of the river to test him about his honesty. At first she came up with a golden axe and asked him "Is that yours?" The woodcutter denied and when she came up with a silver axe and asked the same question and again the woodcutter denied and this time she showed her a ordinary axe and this time the woodcutter agreed. The goddess told him that she likes his honesty and gifting her all the axes. From that day the woodcutter became rich and wealthy and started living a peaceful life.
