

Paragraph on Television

Brajraj Kumar

2-10-21

7th Scholar Batch

The most significant invention by man was designed and developed by J.L Baird in 1927. It is a smart appliance that is used for viewing content all around the globe. The basic functioning of a TV is through the radio waves that are transmitted from the sendered the waves are reflects the receivers antenna, and then we can view our content. It has definitely made our life better by providing us with a great mode of entertainment.

The earlier Televisions were a monochrome, but with advancement in Technology, TVs started coming coloured versions

Television is a popular medium of enjoyment. It provides entertainment for the whole family. We can enjoy a cinema, a football or cricket match, news or serials and many other programs.

TV is now very popular. It is found in almost every home, The TV programs are sources of pleasure to young and old sick and handicapped persons. There are a large variety of channels for each type of people, even for children's.

Television is an effective medium of education, There are many programs for students. TV programs also include a large variety of language according to the country and place. TV is really a great gift of modern science.