Clever Cap-seller

Once upon a time there was a cap seller. He used to go from one village to other to sell his caps. Once when he was selling the caps. One afternoon he was selling the caps he got tired. So he decided to take a small nap under a tree. He placed his basket of caps beside him and took a nap for some time under the tree.

As soon as he slept, there were some monkey's on the tree, who came down and took the caps. They wore the caps and sat on the tree. When the cap seller woke up he saw that his basket was empty, he then noticed the monkey's, on the tree. He got confused to do what to get his caps back.

He then thought of a plan. So he put a cap which he had in his pocket. And then he took off the cap. The monkey's followed him, when he again wore the cap the monkey's also did the same. At last he took off the cap and threw it on the ground, the monkey's also threw their caps, and then as fast as he could, collected the caps and went away happily.

A strong monkey lived on a fig tree near the riverbank. The monkey was friendly with other monkeys and crocodiles who lived in the rivers. One of the crocodile looked at that monkey.

She wanted to taste his heart.

The crocodile turned towards her husband and said, "look at the monkey. I want to eat his heart." Her husband replied,

"The monkey lives high on the tree. How can I catch him?"

She replied. "I don't care how you do it, just bring me his heart."

She left the stage in tears

On her way home, Lula felt really miserable. 'How can I tell my mother what happened?' She thought. 'She spent so much of her time training me, and I have let him down. She will be angry and upset with me.'

What do you think Lula's mother.
