

Social Science (History)

1. What is one of the commonest ways of describing people?

Ans → One of the commonest ways of describing people is the language they speak.

2. What do we tend to associate one region with?

Ans → We tend to associate each region with distinctive kinds of food, poetry, clothes, dance, music and painting. Sometimes these identifies are taken for granted and are assumed that they have existed from time immemorial.

3. How have regional cultures evolved?

Ans → Regional cultures today are often the product of complex processes of intermixing of local traditions with ideas from other parts of the sub-continent. Some traditions appear specific to some regions, others seem to be similar across regions and yet others derive from older practices in a particular area, but take a new form in other regions.

4. What attracted the ordinary people to stories of Rajputs?

Ans → Minstrels used to recite poems and songs which depicted the stories of the 'Rajputs' heroic deeds - By reciting such poems and songs these - minstrels inspired others to follow the example of Rajputs. Ordinary people were attracted by these stories because of the above reasons.