

Indian Village

The life in a indian village is simple and peaceful. It is a mixture of happiness and sorrows, work and rest. It is full of festivals and village pasttimes. Here violence, selfishness, and jealousy are comparatively less than those in the city. Time moves at a slow pace here. In spite of a lot of changes in the life of the village folk since our independence, the villages keep up our rich traditional and culture. The real life of the country lies in our villages, So our Government is giving much emphasis on our villages welfare. The Indian villages nowadays enjoy good roads, electricity facilities, communication and entertainment facilities. The Panchayat Raj System has introduced to bring about an improvement in the village life.
