Recap

- Words show position and time in a sentence are called prepositions.
- The preposition under tells us that someone or something is below something else.
- The preposition over is used to say that something is above something else.
- The preposition inside is used to say that something is within something else.
- The preposition outside is used to say that something is out of something else.
- The preposition below is used to say that something is kept/placed at a position lower than something else.
- The preposition at is used to talk about specific time.
- The preposition in is used to talk about a period of time such as days, months, years and seasons.
- The preposition on is used to talk about a day or date on which a particular event happens.
