

* They believed in the oneness of gods

* They believe in total surrender or bhakti and devotion towards god

* They believed in equality of all human being.

* They believed that the way to realise god was through simple living, and loving and serving others.

* They denounced elaborate rituals in religion and spoke against superstitions.

* They believed in a god, who could be approached directly without the help of priest.

* They believed that people could pray to god in their own simple language and questioned the role of Sanskrit as the only language of prayer.