

Home Assignment

1. AIDS is considered as preventable disease. Give Reasons.

AIDS is considered as preventable disease because it is a preventable disease. AIDS is caused by HIV virus which spread through semen, vaginal fluids, bloods & breast milk. Protect yourself by using condoms & don't share needles with anyone.

2. How does the body defense against invasion?

Skin, tears and mucus are part of the first line of defense in fighting infection. They help to protect us against invading pathogens. You have beneficial bacteria growing on your skin, in your mouth & other places in the body that stop other harmful bacteria from taking

3. Why Antibiotics are not effective on viruses?

Viruses they have a different structure & a different way of surviving. Viruses don't have cell walls that can be attacked by antibiotics, instead they are surrounded by protective protein