

Q → Early on winter mornings we see drops of water on parked cars and plants. Why?

Ans → During night when the hot air comes into contact with the cold surface, water vapour present in it condenses on the cold surface in the form of droplets....

Therefore in early winter mornings, we can see drops of water on the blades of grass. This is because of condensation.