

1. Why is epidermis important for plants?
2. Cork cells are made impervious to water & gases by the presence of which substance?
3. Define guttation.

Answers:-

1. Epidermis is important for plants because it is the outermost layer of the stomata help in gaseous exchange & transportation.
2. Cork cells are made impervious to water & gases by the presence of chemical called suberin.
3. The secretion of droplet of water from the pores of plant is called guttation.