Dear brother,

How are you. I am fine. I have written this letter to ask you to come to my house to join me with Dussehra celebrations. I was very sad and was missing you during last year's Dussehra.

So, I wish that you will come to make me happy. Please come and join us. I will be very happy.

Yours lovingly younger brother

A full 30 days after Ramadan comes Eid. How wonderful and beautiful is the morning of Eid! The trees look greener, field more festive, the sky has a lovely pink glow. Look at the sun! It comes more brighter and dazzling than before to wish the world a very happy Eid. The village is agog with excitement. Everyone is up early to go to the Eidgah

Mosque. One finds a button of his shirt is missing from his and is hurrying up to his neighbour's house for thread and needle. Another finds that the leather of his shoes has become hard and is running for oil press for oil to grease it. They are dumping fodder in front of their oxen because by the time they get back from the eidgah it may be late afternoon. It is a good three miles from the

the village. There will also be hundreds of people to greet and chant with; they would certainly not be finished before midday.

The boys are more excited than the others. Some of them kept only one fast and that too only till noon. Some didn't even do that. But no one can deny them the joy of ~~growing~~ going to the Eidgah. Fasting is for the grown ups and aged.
