

H/W
10.1.2021

- Early on winter mornings we see drops of water on parked cars and plants. Why?
- This is called condensation.
- During the night when the hot air comes into contact with some cold surface, water vapour present in it condenses on the cold surface in the form of droplets.
- These tiny drops of water are called dew drops.