

ENGLISH-HOME-ASSIGNMENTINDIAN VILLAGE (100 words)

India is a land of villages. There are no fewer than six lakh villages in India. About 80 percent people of India lives in villages. So it is rightly said that real India lives in villages. A typical Indian village lacks several facilities, particularly in backward states. But in comparatively developed or advanced states, as in the Punjab and Haryana, many of the facilities available in cities are also available in villages. For instance, many of the facilities villages which may be called ideal villages, have electricity, proper drainage system, good arrangement for drinking water, a community hall, a market, a milk collection centre, a dispensary or hospital, a primary or high or senior secondary school, an elected panchayat, etc.