

The narrator wishes to be either a horse or a fish or a bird. If he were a horse he would gallop in the ~~the~~ fields. If he were a fish he would swim in the ~~the~~ ~~and~~ sea and if he were a bird he would soar in the blue sky.

All Birds find shelter during rain. But Eagle avoids rain by flying above the clouds. Problems are common, but attitude makes the difference.

While children are struggling to be unique, the world around them is trying all means to make them look like everybody else.

Don't fear failing in the first attempt because even the successful mathematics starts with zero only.