Rainy Season

The rainy season is one of my favourite season because it comes right after the hot summer. The whole natural environment including trees, flowers, and other plants gets refreshed at the starting of the rainy season. This season is the best time for tree plantation and our family plant so many trees every year at this time. In the Hindi month of Ashadha and Shrawan, the rainy season gets started in India. A large number of Indian farmers depend on the rain water for carrying out agricultural activities and thus rainy season holds special importance for them. A rainy day cleans the flora on land and makes everything look new and fresh; But there are also worse sides to a rainy day. Excess rain cause damage like floods. At the last the environment becomes cool
