

(2) Yes it is possible because an object becomes in motion and there is a condition in which the motion is opposed by an external force, the object will continue to remain in motion.