The Complaint of Camel

By - Charles Edward Carryl

SCHOLAR

Theme of the Poem

It is a complaint of camel. First, it complains about the food given to it by comparing with others. Then it complains about the place it sleeps. Then it complains about the home given to it. Furthermore, it complains about people riding on it and at last it complains about its look. This is the very nature of humans, we never learn to appreciate what we have but we will always keep complaining by comparing ourselves with others.

Questions and answer

1. What are five things, according to camel that no one cares about?

According to the camel, no one cares about where it rests, eats, lives, how much load it carries its shape.

2. Which are the things that human beings can help the camel with? What is the thing that cannot be changed?

Human beings can help get the camel better food, more comfortable place to live and rest. They can also reduce the load of camel carriers. The look, shape, size and features of the camel, ^{as in} ~~be~~ ^{like} ~~the~~ ^{other} living organisms arrangements of other animals.

3. How do human beings look after the living organisms arrangements of other animals?

→ Human beings let cats rest on chairs, chickens roost upon rails and kittens stay in warm houses. They build stable for puppies, enclosures for lambs, coops for hens and pens of pig.

4. Which animals does the camel compare itself to?

→ The camel compares itself to canary birds,

→ parrots, poodles, chicken, puppies, oysters, lambs, hens, kittens, pigs, giraffes, oxen, rabbits, foxes, snakes, weasels, alligator and lizards.

5. How are the last lines of every stanza similar? What is the meaning of word does in this context?

the last line of every stanza are similar as they all begin with 'but' and say how no one cares ~~at~~ very much about the camel.

- The last line of each stanza is written the style of 'anything / any place / anywhere / any load / any shape does for me'. In all these lines, the camel is saying that no one cares about how it lives, rests or looks. The word does mean work here.

B. Think and answer

- How does the camel sound - unhappy, grateful, jealous or something else? could it be proud? Give examples to support your answers.

The camel may sound unhappy and jealous when it compares itself with other animals and describe how they have better places to live, better things to eat, and even better shapes than the camel. It even calls itself a 'poor camel' because it is not cared for in the same way as other animals. The poem is also titled 'The complaint of camel'. However the camel could also be proud that it can adjust so well to different conditions. No matter what the place, food or load camel can take care of itself.

2. What does this poem say about how helpful the camel is to human beings?

Ans. The poem mentions that the camel is sometimes ridden by entire families. This tells us how the camel is useful to human beings. Also people do not bother much about what the camel eats or where it stays. This tells us that the camel can live and work without any special arrangements. People use camels without having to worry too much about its food (or) shelter.

Appreciating the Poem

1. Which two lines in each stanza have rhyming words within them? What are those rhyming words?

→ The first and third lines of each stanza have rhyming words within them. These are feed / seed, poodles / noodles, aware / share, able / stable, enclosed / exposed, treated / heated, laugh / giraffe, habit / rabbit, round ground, alligator / straighter.

2. What makes this poem funny? Would it be equally funny if it was narrated by a person rather than a camel? why or why not.

The fact that the poem is narrated by a camel makes it funny. The camel compares itself to other animals in funny way. The poem would not be so funny if it were narrated by a person because even if a person talked about the camel's complaints, they would not be able to talk about it exactly as the camel can. Only the camel can talk about its problems and yet sound funny.
