

In this story the writer was asked to help a new girl in the class and become friend of her and show the school. At first she hesitated but later they became good friends by exchanging letters. Writer started respecting her because girls were doing many things for her with just one hand. Being a disable girl she became a good friend of writer by their kind nature.