Dear diary,

I want to share my feelings of tension that I felt which slightly troubled me today during my school time. Actually today was a day of examination. It was social science test. I reached school in time. I got absolutely shocked during I found my friends reading SST notes outside the exam hall. But I had prepared myself for English exam, my wit came to an end when I got to know it was SST not English exam. I couldn't know what to do. Only 10 mins was to go for exam bell. I reorganized myself. I tried my best to recapitulate all SST lessons. I entered hall. I was a little nervous. But when I got the question paper, I went on writing the answers one by one. Things came to my mind nicely well. I completed answering the questions in time. I answered all questions perfectly.

I could not imagine how I could answer the questions concisely. I was very satisfied with my answers. I think ready and quick preparation for a subject is better than having long preparation only on one subject. It was really a great surprise for me.
