

Plastic Pollution

Plastic pollution has become one of the most dangerous environmental issue, as rapidly increasing production of disposable plastic bags overwhelms the world's ability to deal with them. Plastic is pollution is most visible in developing Asian and African nations, where garbage collection systems are often inefficient. But the developed world, especially in countries with low recycling rates, also has trouble properly collecting its reject plastics. Plastic trash has become so common it has prompted efforts to write a global treaty negotiated by the United Nations.
