- Topic - The age of Industrialisation
- Q) Explain any three major problems faced by the new European merchants in setting up their industries in towns before the industrialisation.
- Ans (i) The urban crafts and trade guild were powerful. These were associations of producers that trained apprentices and maintained control over production.
- (ii) They regulated competition and prices and restricted the entry of new people into the trade.
- (iii) They regulated competition and prices and restricted the entry of new people into the trade.
- III) Rulers granted different guilds monopoly right to produce and trade in specific products.
- Q) In the 18th century Europe, the peasants and artisans in the countryside readily agreed to work for the merchants! why? Explain what's proto-industrialisation?
- Ans By working for merchant, the peasants and artisans could retain in the countryside and cultivate their land. Hence, when advances were offered to them, they readily accepted. Income from works for merchants supplemented their savings. It also allowed them to use their household members to the maximum.

- (i) Many peasants had tiny plots of land which could not provide work for all members of the household. So, when merchants came around and offered advances to produce goods for them, peasant households eagerly agreed.
- (ii) By working for the merchants they could remain in the countryside and continue to cultivate their small plots.
- (iii) Income from proto-industrial production supplemented their household income from cultivation. It also allowed them a fuller use of their family labour resources.

Q-2 What were trade guilds?
