

Write a character sketch of the narrator in about 100 words.

The narrator was very much realistic. It was story of a writer who is also a newspaper writer. According to my research she writes short stories and poems on various topics. But here short story 'A helping hand' was very famous and everyone liked it as an article. But few persons also disliked because it was impossible at that time. In this story the author is a student and there is a new girl with prosthetic hand and she does her work in only ~~day and~~ she can in one hand. But sometimes she was unable to do the work. We should appreciate the author for giving us a lesson that we should help every one who is helped by our help.
