

1. Ans - Coins are an important source of information. For historians.

- Coin were used by ruler of a country to enable people to buy good and services.
- The name of the king and the year in which the coins was issued were engraved on the coins.
- Coins also had battle scenes, Faces of kings and queens and scenes from the life of the ruler engraved on them.

2. Ans- We learn history for many reasons

- History teach us to carefully examine and ~~give~~ question facts before accepting them as the truth.
- History educates us. We can learn from mistakes made by people in the past. It thus help us make better decisions in the present and for the future
- A study of the past gives us a sense of identity, it teaches us who we are and who our ancestors were.

3. Ans- The three written sources of ancient indian history are-religious literature, secular-literature, the accounts of-travellers

Religious literature like the Vedas,
the Ramayana, and the Tripitakas provide a wealth of knowledge about India's ancient past.