Q.1. Write a detailed note on the nature of town planning in Indus civilization?

Ans- Town Planning in Indus Cities -

- Cities were well-planned
- Streets intersect at an angle of 90° .
- The towns were divided into two parts - the part on a higher level and another part at lower level.
- The part at higher level was made for ruling class people and this part of the city is known as citadel or acropolis. It was the administrative centre of the city, where large public buildings were located.
- The lower part was made for common people.
- The towns and cities were made up of baked bricks, which show us the architect skills and art skills of the ^{Indus} people.

Q.2. Write a summary on the religious beliefs of Neolithic ~~peop~~ people.

Ans- The Earth provided food and shelter to the ~~Ear~~ Neolithic people. So, probably, they started worshipping god Earth and we can know this from the statues and figurines found at the Neolithic sites. They might have been frightened by the nature and its mysteries. ~~So~~ Probably, the nature was then worshipped in different forms. So, they might have worshipped the different forms of nature like the sun, wind, rain and sky as god.
