Dear diary,

Today was a heart warming day for me!

Today I was going to a market with my parents to get some groceries and when going back our car we encountered a old women beggar sitting ~~on~~ along the wall.

I saw her and I felt bad for her so I asked my father that can I spare her a few rupees and my father said yes but I felt like she needed some ₹10 coins more than just a few ~~₹10~~ ~~₹100~~ so then I again asked my father that can I give her a pack or two of biscuits we just bought ~~g~~ he again said yes. So, I approached her and gave ₹50 along two packs of biscuit I felt like all her misery was gone just by giving her these. She looked up to me giving me a ~~big~~ beautiful smile at that moment I felt like giving her ~~her~~ a hug but ~~at~~ I couldn't. ~~So~~ When my father was loading up the car I saw a kid giving the same women a pack of ~~big~~ something and when the kid turned around he was waving at me with a big smile. I felt I had just ~~the~~ ^{turned} the world for the better, I inspired a kid to do that and he did this on its without anyone telling him. I hope that this small act of kindness made the women's day and I get to this again some other day until then I will always cherish this moment between me and that women.
