

It was a sunny day when everybody was busy in their works. At that a strange thing happened, I was sleeping on my bed. Suddenly I woke up, suddenly found a guy doing something on my laptop. I ran towards it, but it suddenly vanished, even the laptop was shut down, I have never shut-down my laptop so fast in my life. He ran away from my house through the window, I followed him ending up with a broken window piece in my swimming pool. I went after it. He went through different dimensions, he thought about the future. He could just turn a Tesla to a flying car. He was a magician or someone else I don't even understand who was. He even called me up, but also, pulled me up in the air while holding me a letter which able - "get ready for the doomsday this will start soon"

And after that I suddenly woke and realised that I was on my bed and was dreaming. But the was an immense experience for me But now it's 8:00, and I am again late for my school as usual.