Mention the factors responsible for the uneven distribution of population in the world. Give example.

Ans The distribution of population in the world is highly uneven. Some areas are heavily populated, while some have hardly any people.

Thickly populated regions of the world are those that usually enjoy an equable climate, where there is adequate rainfall to allow the practice of agriculture, and where the land is flat and the soil is fertile.

For Example :- India, China, Pakistan, Japan, etc.

Population is low in places where the climate is inhospitable, like the high altitude regions, extremely cold zones, sandy deserts and in the dense evergreen forests of the equatorial regions.

For Example :- Greenland, Russia, The northern parts of Norway, North America, etc.
