

1) Nephron - is considered as the basic functional unit of the body?

2) Bowman capsule is located in none of the above.

3) Ureter - one tube made up of smooth muscle fibres that transport urine to the bladder from the kidneys.

4) The Malpighian corpuscle is a network of tiny blood vessels located at the beginning of a nephron.

15. People living at sea level have around 5 million RBCs per mm of fresh blood whereas those living at an altitude of 5400 meters have around 8 million. This is because at high altitudes.

option (c).

21) Which of the following functions by RBCs is not dependent on the mucous & dirt away from our lungs?

option (a)

31) Exchange of gases b/w external environment & lungs Internal respiration.

42) Which one of the following statements is not correct about salivary

None of the above (e)