

Hw
~~06-06-08~~
06-08-21

HOME ASSIGNMENT

He was warned by a guard not to go grassland alone. But certain bafflements encircled him with the statement as he was new to that place.

One early dinner, when Shankar planned to set his sleep after covering his writing part in the diary. He had lit a lamp. There was a door-glass-paned door which was closed without bolted, where a strange noise dis-created disturbance between his connection with inscribing. So when he started the door, a huge lion with its muzzles against the door made Shankar freeze in his chair. He felt unsecured as he was bare-handed, but was able to find a wooden eucure on the table.

The lion's ~~vis~~ visions were concentrated towards the kerosene lamp, kept on the table; but that lion seemed ~~at~~ disinterested on Shankar, so he ~~left~~ left after a couple of minutes.

After this incident, Shankar got back his senses and bolted the door.

Alkaline: containing alkalis (chemical)

Horizon: the line far away where the land seems to meet the sky.

Quarter: a particular but unspecified area or person.

Muzzle: the nose and mouth of an animal.

Recovered his wits: was able to think clearly again.

Persist: to continue to do something although other people oppose it.