

the story narrating incident highlighting that a little care would have saved everyone's time. The farmer's wife while having a word with Mabel makes the first faux pas when she keeps her dog and the handbag in the narrator's car. The woman is a little scatterbrained who mistook the narrator's car as her own which hastens the acceleration of the story. The narrator was so busy with all the black cars, he started searching for his own while already driving it. Everything becomes clear when the farmer points out the car no and the narrator is relieved.