The banyan tree is the national tree of India which represents culture and history.

The roots of this tree are spread wide and the stems are known to be very strong.

It gives shelter to many birds and small animals and also contains some religious significance. It helps in giving shadow to many people because of the large branches.

It's lifespan is up to 500 years. This tree is found in the subtropical and tropical areas of India, Pakistan and Bangladesh.
