- 1) What makes an election in India democratic?
Explain.

Ans Elections in India is democratic because of the appointment of the Election Commission

He is appointed by the President of India.

He is not answerable to the President or the government. He enjoys the same powers and independence that the judiciary enjoys

EC takes decisions on every aspect of conduct and control of elections from the announcement to the declaration of the results of the election.

It implements the code of conduct and punishes any candidate or party that violates it.

During the elections, the EC can order the government to follow some guidelines to prevent use and misuse of governmental power to enhance its chances to win elections or transfer governmental officials.

When on election duty, government officers work under control of EC and not government.
