

(2)

The constitution of India gives their citizens equality. No one can be discriminated on the basis of their religion, gender, caste, race and economic status. If this rule is not followed the person can seek their justice through the court. Equality is very important for the people. Without equality discrimination will spread giving rise to violence, mental violence, etc.

(3)

a) Try to console the discriminated boy and complain to the teachers present nearby or directly to the class teacher.

b)

Try to make ~~a~~ understandable and respectable comment to the family members not to discriminate anyone on the basis of their religion.

c)

I will share my food with that student and try to ~~make~~ explain to my classmates not to do that again.

d)

Give a sharp and quirky reply to that person.

e)

Give them a challenge to play games with the girl's team and prove them that girls can play better or good like boys.